How Do I Find A Respite Worker?

Family Respite Services will:

- Work with families to complete applications on an annual basis.
- Assist in recruiting support workers, developing goals, and creating a work schedule that meets the needs of the family.
- Select and match support workers with families.

All support workers will be screened and trained by Family Respite Services prior to working with a family. After the support worker is fully screened and has completed training, they will be introduced and interviewed by the family. Once the family makes the decision, that support worker will be hired by that family for that contract.

Family Respite Services is responsible for:

- Supervising and training the support worker
- Paying the support worker
 - Payment comes out of the funds that are agreed upon with the family and the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

The family is responsible for:

- Training and supervising the support worker in their home.
